Summary of key findings

This provision meets requirements

- The childminder understands that she must continue to comply with the requirements of the early years foundation stage. She ensures that she monitors the ongoing suitability of household members to make sure that children are safe.
- The childminder discusses the importance of planning a child-led curriculum based on children's ability and interests. She explains how this helps to keep children engaged and motivated.
- The childminder understands the importance of having clear behaviour expectations, such as being kind to others, taking turns and sharing. She explains how she will support children to learn about their emotions and feelings and understand how their behaviour affects others.
- The childminder discusses the importance of promoting children's confidence and independence, in preparation for going to school. For example, she plans to help children develop communication, physical and self-help skills. For example, encouraging children to put on their own coats and shoes before going outside or ask for help if needed.
- The childminder understands how to promote healthy lifestyles. For instance, she describes how she will plan daily opportunities for children to access outdoor play, to develop their physical and social skills well. The childminder also understands the significance of teaching children about their personal hygiene and healthy eating.
- The childminder understands the importance of developing positive relationships with parents and carers. She explains how she will keep parents informed of their children's care and learning development. She knows that effective parent partnership is paramount for children to achieve their full potential.
- The childminder is aware of the importance of building partnership with external professionals. For example, she explains how she will work with the local authority inclusion team and early years adviser to ensure that all children receive the right support.
- The childminder takes up training available to her for her own professional development. She identified that she needs to refresh her knowledge about younger children to more precisely target and plan individual children's next steps.

There were no children in the early years age range present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no early years children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.
