The quality and standards of the early years provision

This provision is good

- The childminder has a good knowledge and understanding of her role and responsibilities with regards to safeguarding children and keeping them safe. She has implemented written policies, procedures and risk assessments and she shares these with parents.
- The quality of teaching is consistently good and stems from accurate assessment of children's learning and progress. Activities are well planned and provide challenge to children. As a result, children are making good progress given their starting points and capabilities.
- The childminder uses effective teaching strategies to promote children's language and communication skills. She fully acknowledges young children's responses and encourages them to participate in meaningful discussions. Therefore, children confidently express their ideas, views and needs.
- The childminder sensitively settles children into her care and develops warm and caring relationships with the children. Consequently, they are very happy and secure with her.

It is not yet outstanding because

- There is scope to develop children's understanding of diversity by providing further resources within the environment to help children learn to value and respect differences.

Information about this inspection

Inspections of registered early years provision are:

- scheduled at least once in every inspection cycle – the current cycle ends on 31 July 2016
- scheduled more frequently where Ofsted identifies a need to do so, for example where provision was previously judged inadequate
- brought forward in the inspection cycle where Ofsted has received information that suggests the provision may not be meeting the legal requirements of the Early Years Foundation Stage or where assessment of the provision identifies a need for early inspection
- prioritised where we have received information that the provision is not meeting the requirements of the Early Years Foundation Stage and which suggests children may not be safe
- scheduled at the completion of an investigation into failure to comply with the requirements of the Early Years Foundation Stage.

The provision is also registered on the voluntary and compulsory parts of the Childcare Register. This report includes a judgment about compliance with the requirements of that register.

Inspection activities

- The inspector observed the children's play both indoors and outdoors, including adult-led and child-initiated activities.
- The inspector looked at children's records, evidence of the suitability of adults living in the setting, safeguarding procedures and a variety of other documentation.
- The inspector viewed a sample of the children's development records.
- The inspector held discussions with the childminder and also completed a joint observation with her.
- The inspector took account of the views of parents' written testimonials provided by the childminder.

Full report

Information about the setting

The childminder was registered in 2013. She lives with her partner and one child aged 20 months in the Salely area of Derbyshire. The whole of the ground floor, and first floor room known as the garden room is used for childminding purposes. There is an enclosed garden available for outside play activities, and the childminder lives within walking distance of local parks, shops and schools. The family has two cats as pets. The childminder is registered on the Early Years Register and on the compulsory and voluntary part of the Childcare Register. The childminder is able to take and collect children from local schools and pre-schools. There are currently four children on roll, of whom two are in the early years age range and they attend for a variety of sessions.

The childminder operates all year round from 7.45am to 6pm, Monday to Friday, except bank holidays and family holidays. She is a member of the Professional Association for Childcare and Early Years.

What the setting needs to do to improve further

To further improve the quality of the early years provision the provider should:

- extend children's understanding of diversity by increasing the current range of available resources, such as through visual displays and equipment.

Inspection judgements

How well the early years provision meets the needs of the range of children who attend

The childminder has a good knowledge of how children develop and learn. She provides a wide range of activities and experiences that give the children many opportunities for independent play and learning. Consequently, they are making good progress in all areas of their development and they are acquiring the skills necessary to be ready for school. She gathers information from parents when children start, about their interests and care routines, which enables her to plan appropriate activities to meet children's individual needs and interests. The childminder is actively involved in children's play. She interacts well with them. She explains, questions and encourages them to explore, have a go and try new things. This effective teaching encourages children to be active learners. For example, the childminder introduces the children to a selection of paints and a variety of printing resources to stimulate the children's interests and imagination. The childminder supports the children to choose which resources they want to print with, therefore, promoting children's confidence in exploring and making choices. The childminder consistently asks open questions, to help the children to think and make connections in their learning. She extends the activity by supporting the children to count and identify the shapes and different colours. Throughout the activity the childminder praises children's achievements and uses noticeable body language, such as smiles, shrugs and giggles, to demonstrate her pleasure and encourage the children to explore even further. This type of interaction demonstrates the good quality of teaching provided by the childminder, which is effective and ensures that children's individual interests and preferences are catered for. Children are making good progress in their communication and language skills as they constantly chatter and engage in conversation with the childminder. She listens carefully to them and repeats words back to them to aid their pronunciation. The quality of teaching she provides supports children's communication and language skills well through everyday play-based activities. Children have an individual planning record that details their starting points, ongoing progress and next steps. This means that the childminder plans activities that enhance children's learning. Effective planning is carried out and linked to the characteristics of effective learning through the childminder completing a tracker system based upon the seven areas of learning.

Partnerships with parents are well promoted because the childminder actively encourages them to be involved in their child's learning. A wide range of information is gathered from parents at the children's settling in visits, which enables them to settle quickly. Children's ongoing progress and development is effectively shared with parents on a daily basis using a daily journal for each child. Parents are supported in extending children's learning at home. For example, the childminder gives parents information about what their child can do in relation to the early years outcomes and asks them to decide if their child is achieving the expected outcome for their age group. She also gives suggestions as to what parents can focus on at home to support their child's learning further. Parents are very complimentary about the childminder and the impact she has had on their child's good progress.

The contribution of the early years provision to the well-being of children

The childminder provides a warm and welcoming environment where children feel emotionally secure. All children form strong bonds with the childminder and are happy and content in her care. She responds well to children's emotional needs and recognises when they need reassurance and comfort. Information is gathered from parents about their child's needs before they start, for example, what their children are interested in and their sleeping and eating routines. Settling in arrangements are tailored to meet the requirements of each individual child and their family. The childminder also gives out a welcome booklet which introduces her family, the care routines of the setting and a sample of the activities the parents can expect their child to take part in. This detailed document enhances all aspects of the childminder's care and promotes effective working in partnership with parents. The childminder is a good role model who provides clear and consistent guidance for children's behaviour. She teaches children about acceptable behaviour and supports them in learning how to share, take turns and respect each other's feelings. She gives them lots of effective praise and encouragement. This builds their self-esteem and prepares them well for their future transition to nursery or school. Children learn how to keep themselves safe through the guidance that the childminder gives to them. For example, the childminder reminds the children they are not allowed to climb on or play with the fire guard and explains that if they do they may trap their fingers. If necessary, this is repeated again and children listen and respond. Children's behaviour is very good and they are learning to share toys, alongside the childminder's sensitive interventions.

Children are developing a good understanding of the importance of living a healthy lifestyle. At snack time, the childminder asks the children what they would like for a snack, giving them a choice of several fruits. Children are encouraged to feed themselves and during this time the childminder takes the opportunity to chat to the children about the food they are eating, spelling out how words are formed and helping pronunciation by using phonic sounds. The childminder is enthusiastic about caring for children's emotional needs and ensures that nappy changing fully supports their well-being. During nappy changing times, the childminder explains to a child that their nappy needs changing, the area is prepared for the child to see, and nappy changing is a warm and responsive time. The childminder maintains eye contact and sings songs with the child and, consequently, children's emotional well-being is very well supported.

The effectiveness of the leadership and management of the early years provision

The childminder has a good understanding of her role and responsibilities in meeting the safeguarding and welfare requirements of the Statutory framework for the Early Years Foundation Stage. Her knowledge of child protection issues is secure because she has attended safeguarding training. She is fully aware of the potential signs of abuse and neglect and she understands the procedures for reporting concerns. She ensures that all adults living on the premises complete relevant suitability checks to help ensure that they are suitable to have contact with children. In addition, she has effective procedures and risk assessments in place to help ensure she keeps children safe on outings or at home.

The childminder demonstrates a secure understanding of the areas of learning and makes sure that the educational programmes she provides reflect children's needs and interests. There is a broad programme of activities offered, including craft activities and baking, which the children enjoy and which enables them to make good progress. Clear assessments are made, which means that the childminder knows where each child is in their stage of learning and where they need further support. She has a clear understanding and overview of the progress children make over time and talks with confidence about their individual learning pathways. The childminder demonstrates an enthusiastic approach towards providing good quality care and education for all the children. The childminder is committed to continuous professional development and is currently booked on to several sessions of training so that she can further improve her through knowledge of children's learning and development. The childminder has completed a comprehensive self-evaluation and has some good ideas for further improvement. This shows a committed, dedicated perspective that ensures high standards are sustained. Her robust reflective practice supports the creation of a comprehensive action plan that clearly identifies what will develop her setting further.

The childminder has good relationships with parents, she shares with them their child's achievements and progress. For example, they have regular access to their children's learning journals and the childminder encourages parents to be part of the service she provides by sending out questionnaires to all parents on a regular basis. They let her know verbally and through written testimonials how happy and pleased they are with their children's progress since being with her. For example, parents state 'my child is very happy and enjoys going to the childminder's house' and 'she provides a fabulous service that we have been lucky to find'.

What inspection judgements mean

Registered early years provision

Grade	Judgement	Description
Grade 1	Outstanding	Outstanding provision is highly effective in meeting the needs of all children exceptionally well. This ensures that children are very well prepared for the next stage of their learning.
Grade 2	Good	Good provision is effective in delivering provision that meets the needs of all children well. This ensures children are ready for the next stage of their learning.
Grade 3	Requires improvement	The provision is not giving children a good standard of early years education and/or there are minor breaches of the safeguarding and welfare requirements of the Early Years Foundation Stage. It will be monitored and inspected within twelve months of the date of this inspection.
Grade 4	Inadequate	Provision that is inadequate requires significant improvement and/or enforcement action. The provision is failing to give children an acceptable standard of early years education and/or is not meeting the safeguarding and welfare requirements of the Early Years Foundation Stage. It will be monitored and inspected again within six months of the date of this inspection.
Met		The provision has no children on roll. The inspection judgement is that the provider continues to meet the requirements for registration.
Not met		The provision has no children on roll. The inspection judgement is that the provider does not meet the requirements for registration.

Inspection

This inspection was carried out by Ofsted under sections 49 and 50 of the Childcare Act 2006 on the quality and standards of provision that is registered on the Early Years Register. The registered person must ensure that this provision complies with the statutory framework for children's learning, development and care, known as the Early Years Foundation Stage.

Type of provision

For the purposes of this inspection the following definitions apply:

Full-time provision is that which operates for more than three hours. These are usually known as nurseries, nursery schools and pre-schools and must deliver the Early Years Foundation Stage. They are registered on the Early Years Register and pay the higher fee for registration.

Sessional provision operates for more than two hours but does not exceed three hours in any one day. These are usually known as pre-schools, kindergartens or nursery schools and must deliver the Early Years Foundation Stage. They are registered on the Early Years Register and pay the lower fee for registration.

Childminders care for one or more children where individual children attend for a period of more than two hours in any one day. They operate from domestic premises, which are usually the childminder's own home. They are registered on the Early Years Register and must deliver the Early Years Foundation Stage.

Out of school provision may be sessional or full-time provision and is delivered before or after school and/or in the summer holidays. They are registered on the Early Years Register and must deliver the Early Years Foundation Stage. Where children receive their Early Years Foundation Stage in school these providers do not have to deliver the learning and development requirements in full but should complement the experiences children receive in school.

The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills (Ofsted) regulates and inspects to achieve excellence in the care of children and young people, and in education and skills for learners of all ages. It regulates and inspects childcare and children's social care, and inspects the Children and Family Court Advisory Support Service (Cafcass), schools, colleges, initial teacher training, work-based learning and skills training, adult and community learning, and education and training in prisons and other secure establishments. It assesses council children's services, and inspects services for looked after children, safeguarding and child protection.
